Being healthy... including mental health

What does it mean to be healthy? Is it just about what we eat, how we exercise, how much water we drink or how much sleep we have each night?

A key element of school life is on personal development and wellbeing.

So...PSHE is a very important subject

Personal, Social, and Health Education enables the children to develop knowledge, skills and thinking in key areas of maturing as they grow through key stage two. The children learn about the various aspects of being healthy, being safe, positive relationships; assessing risk, making good choices for themselves and others. It is key to the maturing process of key stage 2! At Holy Trinity we make sure that PSHE links with effective safeguarding, computing, science, British values and helps nurture the children's understanding of SMSC - Social, Moral, Spiritual and Cultural education. The children love the opportunity to be challenged, reflect, question, debate and assess risk, alongside the modern technology that engages children currently.

Monday assemblies

So far our Monday assemblies, led by our chair of governors, Rev. David King and his team from St Patrick's church, have had a focus on what it means to be a good friend—someone who is compassionate, someone who is kind, who is committed and who encourages.

Tuesday assemblies

On Tuesdays we have been revising what is involved in being safe and healthy—reminding children how we keep ourselves and others safe at school; promoting safety and resilience alongside each other, reminding children about equality and growth mindset.

This week we looked at how we support each other emotionally, and that our emotional health is just as important as our mental health.

In every class we now have what we are calling our Wellbeing and Mental Health charter. We have the expectation that we need to support one another and we looked at how we do this.

Mrs Sammut also took part in this assembly.

After Half term, Mrs Sammut will be leaving our school to move to a new challenge, working with MENCAP. She explained some famous examples of people with mental health issues, and explained to the children about the work she will start after half term. As the school's Emotional Literacy Support Assistant, our ELSA, she has been a huge support to the children over several years and will be greatly missed. We wish her well as she makes this change. We are also pleased to say that Mrs Gilbert, on our staff team already, will be replacing Mrs Sammut in this role. Best wishes Mrs Sammut and thank you for all that you have done!

Individual Education Plans (IEPs)

New Individual Provision Plan

For children who are on the SEN register we are replacing Individual Education Plans with Individual Provision Plans. These are an improvement and more effective as you will be able to see the provision for your child and the progress they make within that provision over the year. It is a working document and

Wellbeing & Mental Health Charter
Only with Thee, O God, we journey safely on

A new command I give you:
Love one another. As I have loved you, so you must love one another.
John 13:34

We will:

- Look out for each other's emotions and wellbeing
- Be good listeners
- Support each other's needs by:
  - Getting alongside each other to help
  - Giving each other space when we need it
  - Telling an adult if we are worried about someone
- Ask for help from others when we need it because we know that there is help in our school for everyone – we are all a team!
